CATECHISM CORNER

Q. 16. Did all mankind fall in Adam's first transgression.?

A. 16. The covenant being made with Adam, not only for himself, but for his posterity; all mankind, descending from him by ordinary generation, sinned in him, and fell with him, in his first transgression.

This is certainly hard to understand, and we may not think it fair. But the Bible is very clear that when Adam sinned we all sinned. Adam's sin was not simply his own, but the sin of humanity. It isn't just an example of sin that we've followed (it certainly is that), but it is a real fall. We are all sinners by nature. We are a guilty of sin, and the wages of sin is death. God is just in condemning all men eternally and owes us nothing. This is why there can be no religion of works. If we are to know God, if we are to have life everlasting as we were created to have, it must be due to God's gracious work on our behalf in his Son, Jesus Christ.
